Insecure Communication

Monday, November 6, 2017    8:29 PM

Insecure Login

- Sensitive data should never be sent in plaintext!
- Often applications switch to a secure connection after the authorization
- An attacker could just sniff the login and use the gathered information to break into an account
- A good web application always takes care of encrypting sensitive data

- Use Wireshark to sniff the login info since it's being  sent in plaintext